How we use cookies

A cookie is a small file which is placed on a computer's hard drive by a website. Cookies allow web applications to respond to you as an individual. The web application can tailor its operations to your needs, likes and dislikes by gathering and remembering information about your preferences. Cookies do not give us access to your computer or to any personal information about you, other than the data you choose to share with us.

We use traffic log cookies to identify which pages are being used - the site a visitor finds us from, the pages visited whilst on our site, and which site they go to on leaving our site. This helps us analyse data about web page traffic and improve our website in order to tailor it to customer needs. We only use this information for statistical analysis purposes and the data is then removed from the system.

Overall, cookies help us provide you with a better website, by enabling us to monitor which pages you find useful and which you do not.

Depending on your browser setting, you may have to give permission for cookies to be downloaded from our website. Most web browsers automatically accept cookies, but you can usually modify your browser setting to decline cookies if you prefer. Please note: if you set your browser settings to reject cookies you may not be able to take full advantage of the website.
